Summary of approach	Participants are introduced to the essential tools needed to deliver an effective presentation. It's highly interactive with lots of practice in pairs. But it's not too demanding – they don't have to deliver to the whole group or get videoed.	It's a participative, highly practical course which is designed to encourage participants to stretch themselves and try new strategies and techniques. The participants deliver their presentation to the group and get feedback.	Highly participative with video and coaching, participants come pre-prepared with a presentation and slides. They receive peer and video feedback and one-on-one coaching. They also explore our SpeakerMap™ system for designing a presentation.	Highly participative with participants presenting and receiving peer and video feedback. Then a one-on-one coaching session which is also videoed. Participants explore a range of techniques that they can use to maximise the way their message is delivered and received.
